the importance of supervising well the strategic water project worth USD 500 million, saying it would back her government's efforts towards ensuring accessibility of clean water to every Tanzanian.

"Keen supervision is essential and I urge all engineers [involved] to closely follow up and supervise the contractors of those projects and ensure that they are implemented as planned," said President Samia.

The projects, which are funded by a loan from the government of India, will be implemented in Rorya-Tarime, Korogwe, Muheza, Pangani, Wanging'ombe, Makambako, Kayanga, Njombe, Manyoni, Nanyumbu, Sikonge and Chunya. Others are Kasulu, Kilwa Masoko, Lujewa, Mugumu, Geita, Chato, Singida Mjini, Kiomboi, Mpanda, Chemba, Urambo-Kaliua, Ifakara, Chamwino, Mafinga, Makonde Plateau and Songea.

"as the government will not hesitate to take stiff actions against violators," he said.

"[This instrument] will deal with those who will fail to engage in public procurement ethically and professionally, be it public servants, bidders or business people dealing with the government," said Mr. Chande.

Mr. Chande went on to highlight the need for ethical conduct in the sector of public procurement, saying it was where most of the Government budget was spent.

"In the 2021/22 financial year, public procurement consumed TZS 20.48 trillion or 56 per cent of the total expenditure," he said.

On his side, the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Finance and Planning, Mr Emmanuel Tutuba, said the code was prepared in order to address the challenges in the country's procurement and supply that were highlighted by various procurement audits conducted by Public Procurement Regulatory Authority (PPRA) and the Controller and Auditor General (CAG).

"Recent annual public procurement audit reports by PPRA and CAG have revealed corruption red flags and non compliance to the Public Procurement Act and its regulations, which led to great loss to the Government," said Mr. Tutuba.

TPJ understands that the code of ethics, which complies with the requirements of the Public Procurement Act, CAP 410; would ensure more effective supervision of the sector.
